It's My Birthday, Let's Toast!!!

Traditionally I am not one to want to be in the limelight, leaving that to my sparkling sister and shining hubby. And, as this year isn't a significant milestone birthday, I normally would just move through the day feeling thankful that my mama chose this day for me to be born. But, I don't really think any holiday last year really counted as we lived through a year of questions, fear, unknown, and lockdown. So, this year I am ready to celebrate, raising a very tasty glass, like one of these beauties, to health, happiness, and the vaccine! Let's Toast!
