Weekend Wine Notes: Six Midwinter Rosés

Posted by Fredric Koepfel

The weather outside may be frightful, but to sip a rosé wine is still delightful. These six examples can chase the mid-winter blues, not only with their delicate and elegant character but some with their savory elements of fruit compote, spice and earthiness. As usual with the Weekend Wine Notes, I eschew notations about history, geography and technical matters for the sake of quick and incisive mentions ripped, as it were, from the pages of my notebooks. Enjoy.

ONWARD HAWKEYE RANCH ROSÉ OF PINOT NOIR 2016

Redwood Valley, Mendocino County

Radiant copper-coral hue; ripe and fleshy, with blood orange, tangerine and a hint of peach; a few minutes in the glass bring in notes of rose-hip tea, graphite and red currant; the epitome of delicacy and ethereal radiance, yet with a solid grounding in steely minerality. 12.1% alc. 324 cases.

Excellent.
